CLASS OF JANUARY 1941

Foreword

THE conclusion of our high school days has arrived, and with it we are confronted with one of the crossroads of our lives. We must now choose the path of our future endeavor—college, industry, business. However difficult this choice may be, it is made with the happy knowledge that we are Americans, living in a land of personal freedom where each man respects the thought, speech, writing, religious preference, and enterprise of his neighbor.

Today, all free people are faced with the responsibility of maintaining and preserving these great institutions. To us this task is one which must be faced boldly and courageously. Our path will not be easy, but let us at our crossroads realize the value of our sacred heritage. We must unflinchingly carry on the faith, ideals, and hopes of our forefathers.

We must not fail!

Dedication

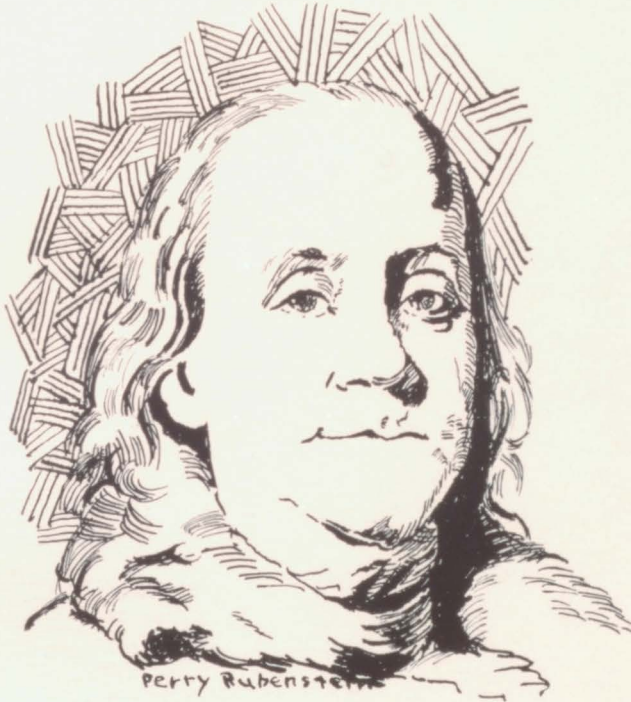

WE, the class of January 1941, humbly dedicate our yearbook, Crossroads, to American traditions, to American ideals, and to American freedom.

Surely, as ever, does America stand as a mighty guardian of Democracy, of Justice, and of Liberty.

Class History

FEBRUARY 1937 found a body of bewildered freshmen entering Bloomfield High School. Many obscure rumors of initiations and of upper-classmen's sovereignty had reached our ears. Perhaps this was the reason that during this initial term, we frequently blundered in finding our way about the school. In the latter part of the Freshman term, Doris McCormick, Georgette Vanacore, and James Santomier were elected class officers.

We gained our sophomore status sooner than expected, and no longer felt obliged to be oppressed. The same officers were retained and continued to perform their duties in all fields remarkably well. In mid-term the class dance, destined to become an annual affair, was held.

Juniors! Upper classmen! Both seemed too wonderful to be true. When we finally accustomed ourselves to this new atmosphere, a new group of able officers, Kenneth Taaffe, Georgette Vanacore, Mortimer Woletz, and Carolyn Cogan handled the affairs of the class flawlessly. The Junior term may be remembered best for its Junior Prom. This gathering of boys, girls, tuxedos and evening gowns left its indelible impression.

The Senior year came upon us quickly, but soon became the busiest and most boisterous period of our high school careers. The final election was held and Arthur Nelson, Carolyn Cogan, Lorraine Cook, and Edwin Kramer were appointed to lead us through this crisis. Mid-term arrived and with it came preparations for the senior play. Next followed appointments for Crossroads, picture sittings, the Senior Prom, and the class banquet. At publication, all have been successfully experienced with the exception of the banquet. We all look forward with anticipation both to this affair and to graduation night as the outstanding occasions of our lives.

We wish to offer our sincerest gratitude and thanks to the teachers and advisers who aided and supervised us.

"Young April"

COMBINE a well-known cast, an excellent plot, and the able direction of Mrs. Lucille Williams and you have the senior play production, "Young April." Even old Jupiter Pluvius who reigned on the two nights of presentation could not deprive the hard-working actors of their plaudits.

Kenneth Taaffe, the bewildered college student, Edwin Kramer, a handsome football hero, Jean Armstrong, the beautiful heroine, and Adam Kochel, the ethical professor, provided a combination of drama, romance, and comedy, establishing a place for "Young April" among the former senior play successes. Moreover, the parts portrayed by the minor players all added to the entertaining quality of the story. We wish to give our most sincere thanks to Mrs. Williams for her coaching.

Football

WIN, lose, or draw, the teams representing Bloomfield on the gridiron have shown the highest brand of sportsmanship. The athletic prowess of these teams has varied, but Coach Foley has always seen that the conduct of his charges remains of the same high caliber.

WON! The North Jersey Championship for six consecutive years, 1932 through 1937. During the Bengals' reign, opponent after opponent was mowed down by human machines with such precision action and power house force that Bloomfield was awarded the mythical championship of the United States. Molding such outstanding players as Schumell, Berlinsky, Kochel and Frick into the pattern of his system, Coach Foley has been rewarded with the laurels of the State Crown seven times in the past decade, an unequaled record and a fitting tribute to true coaching genius.

The present team, led by Captain Sam Zahnle, found itself facing the obstacle of starting on a hard schedule without the aid of a half dozen veterans who had been counted upon to return. The solution to this problem was found in the supply of junior and sophomore reserves who have filled in nobly.

Basketball

WHETHER the tide be with them or against them, the Red and Gray warriors have always shown fight and tenacity worthy of their symbol, the Bengal Tiger. The great heart of our teams was shown in the State Basketball Tournament of 1937. The selection of Bloomfield to participate in the battle for state honors received much criticism and the Bengals were given little regard. But when the smoke of battle cleared away, a new champion had been crowned. A team playing with heart and fight, which more than balanced a lack of skill and finesse, had brought another great honor to the portals of Bloomfield High.

Since that year, the quintet has tried again and again to hit that bull's eye, never failing to gain entrance in the tournament, and in 1939 going to the finals, but meeting defeat at the hands of Memorial High.

With the close of the 1940 season, cut short by the upset "sudden death" victory of West Orange in the first round of the State Tournament, there came to an end the high school career of one of the greatest basketball players to be developed in B.H.S., Andy Kostecka.

The coming season finds Bloomfield with the "Big Five"—a combination that has been playing together since grammar school days. This, their senior-year, should find them once more blazing the name of Bloomfield as a championship contender.

Baseball

IN the year 1935, the winning of the state championship over a powerful Hillside nine began a feat which is almost as rare as quintuplets or a royal flush. For it was the start of a "grand slam" in sport; that is, Bloomfield won consecutively the baseball, football, and basketball championships of New Jersey. No greater honor could be awarded to a school or to its coach, William L. Foley.

This team was as strong and well balanced as any yet developed in high school circles. Good testimony of the caliber of these players is shown in the accomplishments of Hank Borowy and Don Savage, who are gathering fame for Bloomfield in professional ranks. We should also include in this group Ozzie Nelson, whose career was so tragically cut short by death.

The 1940 team, led by smiling little Johnny McGrath, finished on the wrong side of the ledger. Strangely so, for potentially, the team was as powerful as even the championship nine. Perhaps Coach Foley can cure this malady, which caused B.H.S. to lose five of its last seven contests by one run margins.

FIRST ROW: Byrne Sullivan, Harold Sadowski, Warren Lackey, Captain William Young, John Byrne, Paul Van Netten, Wallace Carman.

SECOND ROW: Assistant Manager Harry Masin, Robert Wertz, William Marfuggi.

Track

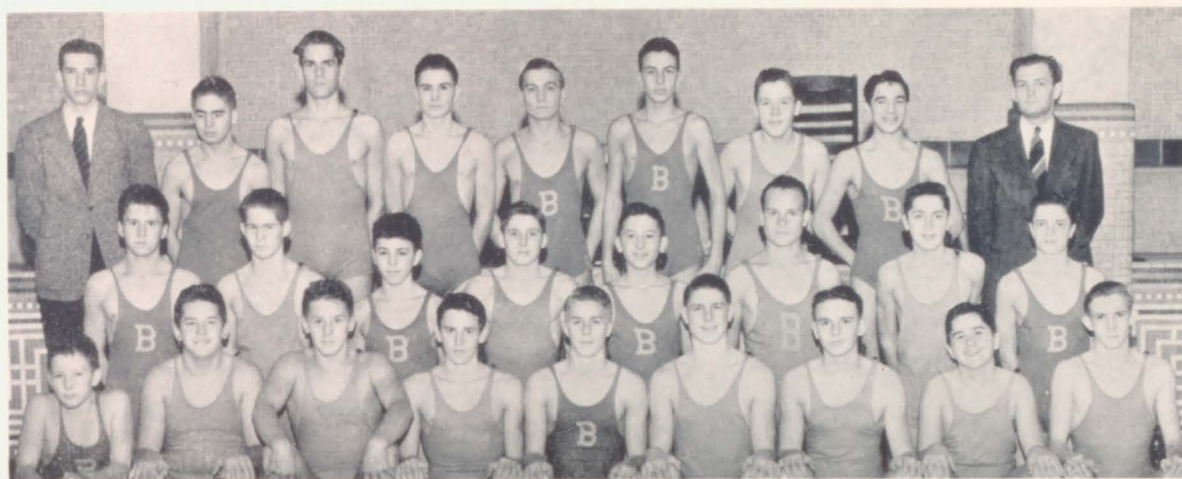

SINCE the formation of a track squad in 1936, it has been the secret ambition of Coach Spencer Woolley to send a team to the Penn Relays. At this famous meet held yearly at Philadelphia, a galaxy of high school and college stars strive for their respective Alma Maters. This year Coach Woolley found he had four capable middle-distance men and so the team of Captain Bill Young, Wallace Carman, William Marfuggi, and Walter Markowitz was entered.

Expecting little more than that his charges would gain some worthwhile experience from the top-flight competition, Mr. Woolley saw instead his number one man, Young, run around the track and with a good ten yard advantage pass the baton to Carman. Carman added more yardage, and it was only necessary for Marfuggi and Markowitz to hold this lead to come flashing home with a first place victory. The team members received gold medals for their triumph and a bronze plaque was presented to the school.

The squad carried on the rest of the season in this spirited manner and finished with a brilliant record of five triumphs, placing second to Montclair and Plainfield in two meets and dropping only two dual meets.

As a reward for their fine record, a running track, one of the finest in the state, has been built at Foley Field. The Red and Gray will now have its own cinder paths leading to the road of glory.

CROSSROADS

FIRST ROW: Beach, Miele, Heeb, Cohn, Captain Myers, Foster, Schmey, Siver,

SECOND ROW: Gordon, Dohn, Wedda, Schapp, MacGilvary, Townsend, Fisher, Foster.

Swimming

THE aquatic mermen of B. H. S. completed their past schedule with the creditable showing of five wins and five losses. The team, led by Captain Bob Giardino, was not one of individual stars but a well-balanced, hard-fighting club whose strength lay in its work as a unit.

Consistent first place winners were Dick Axt, Captain-elect Bill Myers, Captain Giardino, Bob Beach, Newell and Bill Smith, and Fred Foster.

The team was hard hit by graduation, but Faculty Adviser Edward Carton has an able-bodied squad of reserves who may be counted upon to fill in the breach. The squad, managed by William Haag, will be following in the wake of Captain-elect Bill Myers, who has the habit of breaking the school backstroke record whenever he takes to water. Bill carried this habit into the state meet where he placed fifth in his event while again lowering the school record. A medley relay team consisting of Bob Beach, Dick Axt, and Bill Myers scored in the meet as well.

Although the squad has a hard schedule ahead, we are sure it will be in the swim.

FRONT: Harmon Bergen, Cyrus Nuce, William Price, and Weldon Reinhardt.

Fencing

FENCING is fast becoming a popular sport among the masculine members of B. H. S. It is a sport which develops a keen eye, fine co-ordination and muscle.

Now in its third year the B. H. S. Fencers have made a place for themselves on sport records. Last year they placed fourth in the state meet and took second, third, and sixth places in the prep meet.

This year's team, consisting of Warren Amerman, Willard Mound, Weldon Reinhardt, Ted Purcell and Manager Andrew Lyon, should make a fine record, for they have experience behind them.

Girls' Gym Teams

THE many members of the Junior and Senior Gym Teams enjoy the clever gymnastics taught to them under the able leadership of Miss Edith C. Russell.

Character is the chief requirement of a member of the gym team; the ability to perform gymnastics is secondary. The girls selected by Miss Russell are first placed on the Junior Gym Team. There they are taught simple exercises on the ropes, bucks and parallels; then if their personalities and accomplishments are worthy of promotion, they are placed on the Senior Gym Team, a privilege cherished by the girls.

Once on the Senior Gym Team, the girls forge ahead into intricate and brilliant exercises. The gym teams endeavor to develop a sound body, character, clean living, sportsmanship, confidence, cooperation and loyalty.

Each year, a Mother and Daughter Banquet is held, followed by a program illustrating girls' athletics in which members of all teams participate. To outstanding members of the gym teams Miss Russell presents a silver medal encircled with the words "Nobleness Enkindleth Nobleness."

At the end of each year, girls' major B's are given to members of the Senior Gym Team who are also playing on the class interclass basketball and archery squads. Emblems are presented also to Junior Gym Team members engaged in these sports.

Girls' Basketball

INTERCLASS basketball is one of the major girls' sports of B. H. S. It is a game which promotes keen rivalry, plus good sportsmanship. Quick thinking, action and accuracy are at a premium. The sport is well liked by our girls for they are eager to meet its requirements, namely: speed, teamwork, quickness, and cleverness in deceiving their opponents.

Last year our team captained by Gertrude Downs was victorious over all classes except the all-powerful seniors. Captained again this year by Gertrude Downs, the team composed of Helen Adubato, Barbara Comstock, Norma Kastner, Virginia Hawkins, Dorothy Roddy, Georgette Vanacore, Helen Strevig, Louise Goursky, and Jane Pfeifer should have a successful season.

Archery

BLOOMFIELD HIGH SCHOOL'S archery team has won an impressive number of laurels during the four years since it was started by Miss Edith Russell. Under her expert teaching and with the support of the A. A., our team is judged to be the best in the state, having retained the state championship for two years.

Last year the team carried its record of triumphs to new heights by winning an international shoot with Tokyo High School, Japan. Chosen because of its outstanding record, it is the only team in America to have faced Tokyo.

In the state indoor shoots the Bloomfield High team attained highest place and also won the Woodbridge and Panzer trophies, which now have their place in the B. H. S. trophy case.

The team now engaged in a National and State Mail Tournament should make a fine showing.

Members of our class who are on the Bloomfield team are Gertrude Downs, manager of the '39 team, Barbara Comstock, Doris McCormick, Jane Pfeifer, and Dorothy Roddy, captain of the '39 team.
